This Letter is in regard to Petitioner Hardships

As an older sibling to the Petitioner, Giordan MD Guerrero; I've always known Giordan to be a kind, confident and caring person. I've also had the pleasure of watching him mature into a strong, determined, and deeply loving individual upon enlisting in the US armed forces. Once he completed his basic training, he was then Stationed in South Korea, where he met his future wife and Beneficiary; Irang Guerrero. Naturally we kept in contact with Giordan through Facebook, Facetime and other communication platforms. After some time getting to know one another, he would contact us just to discuss his time with Ms. Irang. He absolutely fell more in love with the Korean culture, cuisine, lifestyle and the people. You could just hear it in his voice how happy he was living in Korea. I know for a fact the having Ms. Irang's partnership during his time there made all his experiences in Korea that much more enjoyable. As his family, of course we wanted nothing more than his happiness and safety, so to hear that he found someone that provided that, as well as love, partnership, compassion and care; left us with a great sense of ease and happiness.

In 2018, Giordan was reassigned to Fort Bliss Texas, and unfortunately, this meant that he would be separated from Ms. Irang for quite some time. During this time, calls with Giordan weren't as cheerful. He would lament about how much he missed Ms. Irang and wished that he had been able to continue his orders in Korea. He would stress over her well-being and it was obvious this was a hard transition for him. The following year, Ms. Irang would be able to come to the US with a visa so they could get married. Though the road leading up to this achievement was met with numerous obstacles, everyone was elated to hear the news. At that moment we couldn't have been happier for the two of them and proud of their perseverance through such a trying time in their lives.

Recently however, we have received news of the possibility that Ms. Irang's Green Card application may be denied. This news was devastating to all of us. After nearly a year of financial hardships, emotional and mental health stresses, and grueling paperwork procedures and requirements, to know that there's a possibility it could have all been for nothing, is weighing incredibly on my brother. I've watched him breakdown emotionally more in the last few weeks than I ever have in our lives. I'm worried for his well-being and can't even fathom what he must be going through. I know life as a service member can be difficult enough, but I fear that separating Giordan and Ms. Irang will no doubt have devastating consequences on my brother's mental and emotional wellbeing.

Sincerely,

Gianni MD Guerrero
